Description

An arts and crafts oak sideboard with later granite top. The oak rectangular top has an egg and dart moulding. It has four solid oak drawers with a central arch below and cupboards either side, one with a single drawer and the other with two tray drawers. The sideboard stands on four bun feet and is in original condition. It requires restoration or can be left as is, as the sideboard has oil and bits of paint on it in various places including the top as per photos. It has come from a property where it was used as a work bench in a farm building for over 50 years. This would be a nice restoration project for someone or an opportunity to purchase a good quality sideboard at a reasonable price for oneself or for a client. Once restored, it would become a perfect piece of furniture for a sitting room, dining room, hallway or conservatory. Collection / delivery charges to be paid for by the purchaser.
